

News Update:

12/2/08

As I mentioned in our last newsletter, we have been making several design changes to our J-wheelz product line thanks to some great suggestions from our product testers and interested buyers. I am pleased to let you know that the changes have been completed and are performing beyond our expectations. Here is a brief summary of the new J-wheelz features:

- Recessed protected lip – Blue arrow
- Debris deflectors – Green arrow
- Extra blade hook – Red arrow

In addition to these changes our product development team has been working on some more aggressive replacement blade designs. The prototypes look great and are significantly taller than the standard blades. With a little more snow on the ground we might have a chance to test these soon!

Here is the first set of prototypes:

Here are the scoop blade prototypes:

Last but not least we are wrapping up the last piece of our manufacturing schedule and I will have an update by next week on an official J-wheelz product release date. Thank you for your continued interest in J-wheelz. Also check out our new installation video on the Owner Resources page.

http://www.j-wheelz.com/owner_resources.html

If you have specific questions, or if you would like to be removed from this list, please feel free to use the Contact Us page on our website (http://www.j-wheelz.com/contact_us.html), or call our office at (605) 692-1590.

Regards,
J-wheelz

Jake Mills